Half-Moon Arch (Grade B+) and Half-Moon Overlook – 12October2024

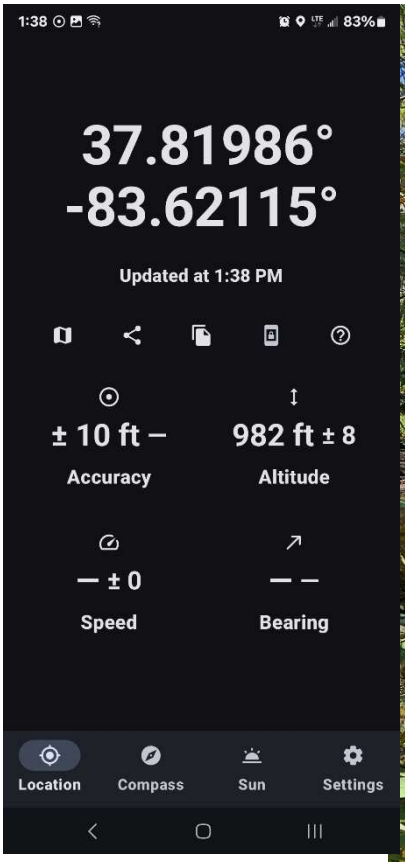

Just before the Chimney Tops parking area, there a large shoulder for people to park on either side of the road for Half Moon. Half-Moon Arch is a Grade B+ because it has an opening that you can't walk through standing up. The trail is very short and easy (Class 1.0) with a small climb down (Class 1.1) to the arch. Many people don't know about the arch and walk over it to get to the Half-Moon Overlook, which is great to repel off of.

Half-Moon Arch (Grade B+) and Half-Moon Overlook – 12October2024

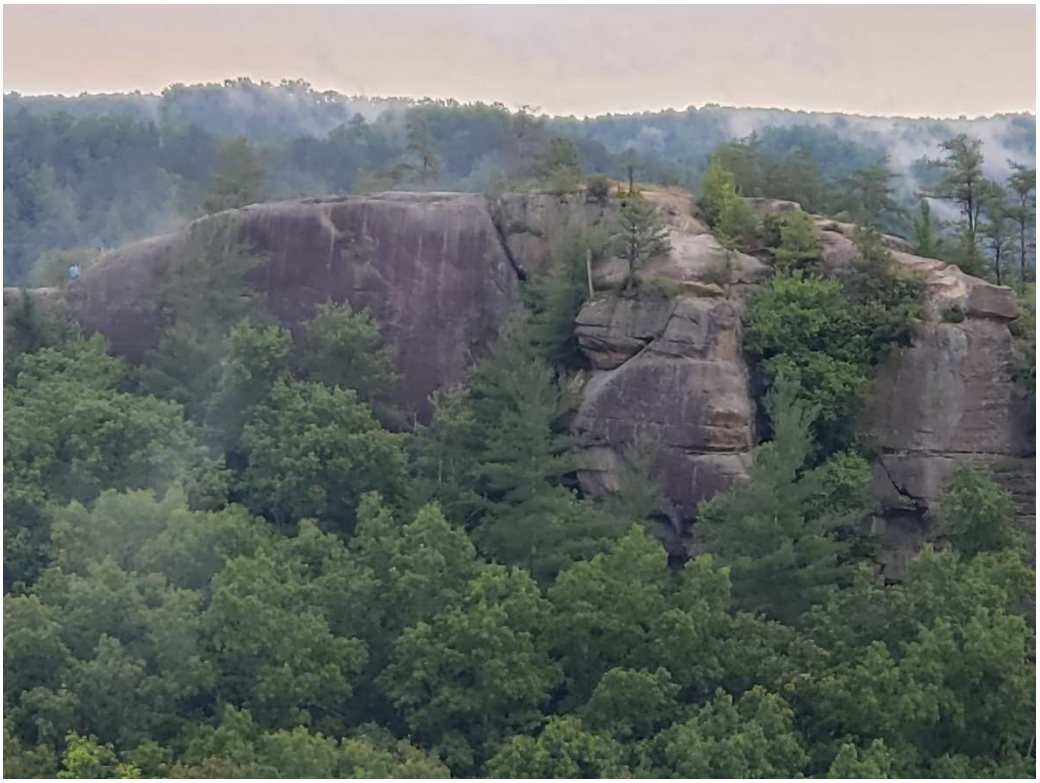

Here are the coordinates for the very simple climb down to the Half-Moon Arch.

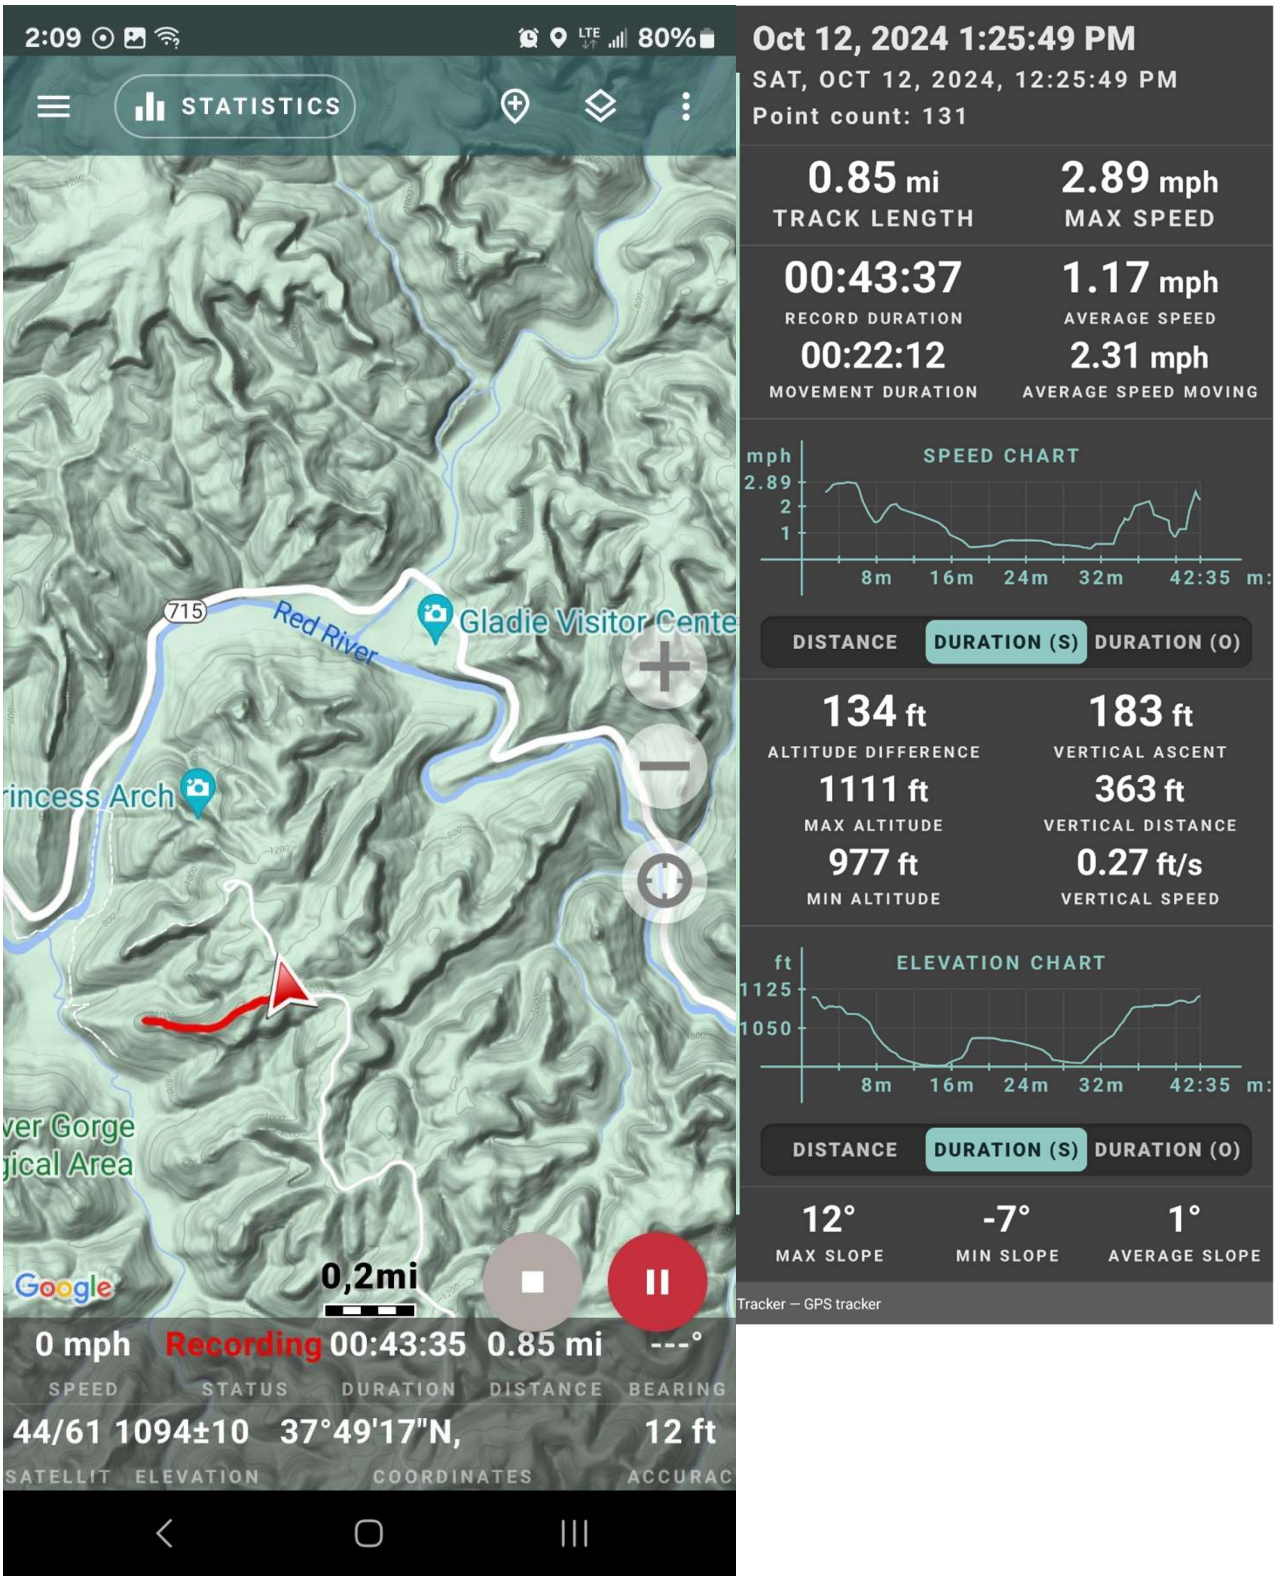

On to Half Moon Overlook as seen my Chimney Tops on very humid day.

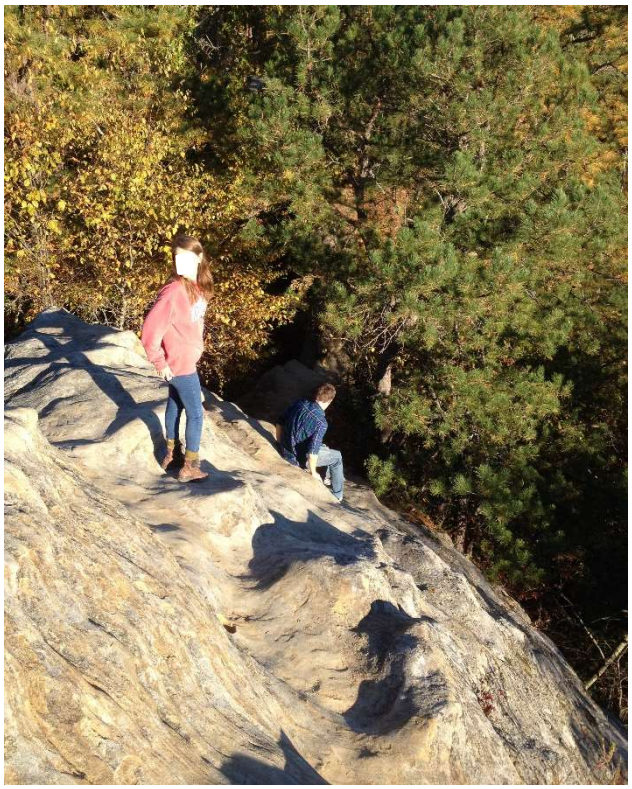

Out to the end of Half Moon Overlook and back is only 0.85 mile.

Half-Moon Arch (Grade B+) and Half-Moon Overlook – 12October2024

To climb on top of Half-Moon, you must make the choice if you were to fall of facing certain death by falling to your right or wishing you died by falling to your left. Plus, getting down is no fun either.

Madison, Zack, and Fox are climbing up the Red Line and making their way to the red circle.

The cut in the rock is where ropes have carved a channel as 100's have repelled from the abutment.

the Chimney Tops

Here are friends on the same ledge with no fear of the danger from one bad sneeze.

Half-Moon Arch (Grade B+) and Half-Moon Overlook – 12October2024

Lots of things to see around Half-Moon without extra driving, such as the Chimney Tops and Princess Arch. On your way back to HWY 715, you can stop and go to Friendship Arch, Friendship Tunnel, and Catspaw arch.

